PIANOS AND ORGANS.

$550 "Chickering," $375 A customer has sent us her Chickering Upright Piano, used * less than a year and as good as the day she paid $550 for it, with instructions to sell it for $375

We have also a magnificent Weber Square taken in exchange -as good as new, which cost $500. We will sell it for $250-a grand bargain.

A number of second-hand Square Pianos—just the thing for practice work, which we offer ridiculously low on easy payments.

John F. Ellis & Co., It Music House, 937 Pa. Ave.

Power of cash.

The cheapest prices are always cash prices, and these are times when the cash buyer has everything almost his own way,

We buy not only at wholesale, but invariably for cash, and therefore can and do sell at less prices than the piano dealer who buys on time.

Store this fact in your memory against the time when you buy a piano, or, better yet, call and see if we cannot arrange satisfactory terms with you now.

A Purpose Well Fulfilled

-From the beginning Messrs. Gildemeester & Kroeger aimed to produce pianos of unequaled musical and mechanical excellence. The most appreciable evidence of their success is the vast popularity of Gildemeester & Kroeger

Pianos throughout planodom. They have been eminently satisfactory from the start, and justly deserve the warm praise for their superior qualities of tone and action and durability. Call and examine G. & K. Planos some time.

smoke; will recover. Scene of the Tragedy.

Exteriorly handsome and imposing, the house in which the tragedy occurred is one of a row of granite-front residences belonging to the A. S. Abell estate, on Charles street, just north of Lafayette avenue. It is four stories in height, and at the time of the fire was filled with costly furniture and much rare bric-a-brac, plate and unique jewelry, of which Mr. Armiger was an enthusiastic collector. In the house were numbers of the Armiger household With the best of medical references, by applying at 913 9th st. n.w. ja29-1m* two were servants and the other. Mr. Man uel, was a guest who has been visiting the Armiger family for the past two or three days. It was his purpose to have returned to his home in New York last Saturday night, but Mr. Armiger prevalled upon him

All of these people were in their bed rooms, on the upper floors, some of them being partially dressed, when, at 8:15 o'clock yesterday morning, fire was discovered issuing from a partition in the cellar. It had ignited from an overheated furnace flue, and was first seen by Louis Whiting, the colored man-of-ali-work, who was at the time cleaning the front steps. Whiting ran to the adjacent corner and gave the alarm to a policeman, and hurried back to the house, entered the front door, closed it behind him, and ascended to the second floor, where Mr. and Mrs. Armiger had their bed room.

Thick clouds of smoke had by this time filled the house, and when the colored man and Mrs. Armiger attempted to descend they found it impossible. Whiting aided Mrs. Armiger to the front window and helped her to reach a small balcony in front, upon which he placel her, and re-turned to the aid of Mr. Armiger. He found the latter had gone, and came back to Mrs. Armiger, who, clad in nothing but her night clothes, was shivering on the narrow balcony and shricking in agonized tones for help. Half a dozen men who were passing hastened to the rower house of the

Charles street cable car line, a block be-low, and produced a short ladder. Arrival of Help. Help came in good time, for when they returned they found Fire Chief McAfee, a noted life saver, who quickly mounted the ladder. It was not long enough, but, by standing on the uppermost round, he could reach the frightened woman. Lifting her from the balcony, her scanty clothing caught on an obstruction; she fell forward with her whole weight upon the outstretched arm of the fireman. Just then the ladder slipped, and every one expected to see both the rescuer and the womar he was trying to save dashed to death on the pavement below. By a tremendous effort, however, McAfee steadied himself, and, holding Mrs. Armiger with one hand, grasped the balcony with the other. Hanging thus, he slowly replaced the ladder with his feet, and brought the now fainting woman down in safety. Cheering Bravery. Yells and cheers greeted his noble efforts. In the meantime the other inmates of the front rooms were crowding to the windows, making the most piteous appeals for help. Cries from the people below warned them not to jump, but Alice Williams disregarded their warnings, and with an appalling shrick sprang from the fourth-story window, struck the stone steps full upon her forehead, fracturing her skull and sustain ing fatal injuries. An attempt was made to succor the other unfortunates by means of the doorway on Charles street, but when the policemen burst it in they were met by a volume of smoke and flame and were driven back. Griven back.

Scared and almost panic-stricken were Eleanor and Virginia, unmarried daughters of Mr. Armiger, in a rear room on the sec-ond floor. They were partially dressed, but so rapid was the spread of the flames that so rapid was the spread of the flames that they had no time to escape by the stairway. Standing at the rear window they cried wildly for help.

A neighbor came to their aid, and under his cool-headed directions Miss Virginia lowered her younger sister with a sheet, and throwing a mattress out of the window, leaped to the yard below. She alighted in safety and heaved the sheet and ed in safety, and beyond the shock and a slight injury to her ankle, escaped unhurt. By this time the firemen had reached the scene, and in a twinkling had reared long ladders up to the windows, both front and rear. Corpses Clasped Corpses.

Many swarmed up these, and in a few minutes the remaining inmates of the doomed house were being carried out. On the stairway leading from the second to the third floor was found the body of Mr. Armiger, with that of his little grandchild, Richard Riley, clasped tightly in his arms, showing that the old man had made a gallant attempt to rescue the boy at the cost of his own life. In the front room on the third floor was found the corpse of Mr. Manuel. He, too, had the body of a child in his arms, telling another story of unre the bed, the firemen found the dead body of Mr. Riley. By his side lay his wife, breathing faintly. She was hurried into the ope ing faintly. She was hurried into the open air in time to save her life, and though she is badly burned about the face and arms and half crazed by her terrible loss, she will recover. In another room were the bodies of Mrs. Champlin and her three-year-old son, while upon the upper floor the firemen found Ida Whiting, the colored servant, unconscious from smoke but not servant, unconscious from smoke, but not ser lously affected. The injured were taken to the homes of neighboring friends, with the exception of the servants, who were con-veyed to the City Hospital.

Kind hands tenderly carried the dead kind hands tenderly carried the dead bodies across the street to the residence of Dr. E. K. Batcheler, where every effort was made to resuscitate them without avail. When it was found that nothing further could be done for them they were covered with sheets and laid out on the floor of the physician's parlor to await the coming of the undertaker. The fire, although a fierce one, was confined to the Armiger residence, which was completely gutted.

Estimates of the loss are uncertain, but it is thought the contents of the house were worth at least $10,000. The house is insured in the Germania Insurance Company of New York for $3,500. Prayers in the Churches.

The news of the disaster spread with wonderful rapidity all over the city, and in one hour a tremendous crowd gathered in most every church in the city and expres-

most every church in the city and expressions of sincere sympathy and regret were uttered from every pulpit, and repeated in the households of the many friends and acquaintances of the unfortunate family.

The scene in the parlors of Dr. Batchelor's residence, 1807 North Charles street, where the charred and bruised bodies were carried, was harrowing. Even the undertakers and their assistants, used to scenes of death, turned away at times half sickened. Mr. Armiger was burned to a crisp around the upper part of his body. The white hair around his venerable head was matted with blood and cinders. His face and forehead were badly burned.

Mr. Riley died from burns and suffocation. He was a rather stout and muscular man. The burns were chiefly about his face, neck and shoulders. His face was terribly distorted and wore an expression of awful

Mr. Manuel was badly burned, and his horribly scarred face and body were twisted to one side as though he had died only after making a supreme effort for life. Gleaming in startling contrast with the burned and blackened fingers of Mr. Manuel's left hand glistened a handsome diamond ring, shaped like a serpent, with the glittering gem in the center of the Fainted at the Sight.

Strong men who were standing in the parlor turned their heads, when two undertakers brought in the body of little James Champlin, grandson of Mr. Armiger. A woman standing near the parlor door, in the hall, fainted. The child was a blackened cinder. Smoke and fire had done their fearful work. Even the throat and nostrils were burned inside. His little white night gown was dabbled and spotted with cinders and dark stains from the burned body.

Killed by Smoke. The two Riley children were killed by the suffocating smoke. They were not as badly burned as the others, but their faces were blackened from the bursting of blood vessels, and the red crimson fluid stained their blackened night gowns. Poor little Marlan's golden hair was mat-ted about her face, where it had not been burned off. Strands of the silken tresses were imbedded in the flesh. They had fallen there when the body was moved from the room and had dried in the burns. Mrs. Letitia Riley, who is so cruelly be-reaved, is lying at the home of Dr. Batche-lor in a semi-stupor seemingly unconscious lor in a semi-stupor, seemingly unconscious of her irreparable loss, and suffering great physical agony. The physician says, however, that her wounds are more painful than serious, and that the only obstacle to her complete recovery will be the awful shock she has sustained and will again ex-perience when the full knowledge of the dreadful thing that has come to her makes itself clear to her mind.

Mrs. Armiger and her other surviving daughters are at the home of James West, No. 5 West North avenue, all completely prostrated by their terrible experience.

MASONIC VETERANS. Enjoyable Business and Social

Session Saturday Night. The annual meeting of the Washington Masonic Veteran Association, which was held at Masonic Temple Saturday evening, February 22, was the most successful and enjoyable one in the history of the organization. In the chair was the president, Noble D. Larner, who congratulated the association on its continued prosperity and the peace and harmony prevailing within its ranks. The constitution was amended providing for an annual meeting on the second Wednesday in February for the transaction of regular business and the appointment of a committee, under whose direction the stewards will provide the fu-

REVOLUTIONARY SONS.

They Gave a Reception to the Daughters at the Arlington Hotel. The reception given at the Arlington Sat urday evening by the Sons of the Revolution and the Sons of the American Revolution in honor of the national officers and state regents of the Daughters of the American Revolution was a fitting celebration to mark Washington's birthday, and also brought to a close a week which had been full of matters of interest to the patriotic societies.

The occasion was a most delightful one, and the handsomely decorated rooms were thronged all the evening with a crowd of men and women prominent in official and social life here and elsewhere. The Marine Band Orchestra, which furnished patriotic music throughout the evening, was sta-tioned at the entrance to the banquet hall, and before the door a marine in full dress and before the door a marine in full dress uniform, with side arms, marched up and down as sentry. The guests were received by Major Green Clay Goodloe, Admiral R. G. Walker, president of the Sons of the Revolution; Prof. G. Browne Goode, president of the Sons of the American Revolu-tion, and Mrs. Rose F. Brackett, first vice president of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Prof. G. Brown Goode extended a hearty welcome to the guests, after which Gen. J. C. Breckinridge was intro-duced and made an appropriate address. Later in the evening an elegant buffet lunch was served in the big banquet room. The joint committee in charge of the recep tion consisted of W. V. Cox, chairman; John B. and File.

The celebration Saturday evening at Center Market Hall of the founding of the republican party forty years ago was an event which called out one of the largest and most enthusiastic audiences Washington has seen in years. The hall was richly decorated with the national colors and large portraits of Washington, Lincoin and Grant hung above the stage, which was embowered in ferns and palms. Across the front of the stage hung the legend in crimson cartoons: "1856. G. O. P. 1806." The Fourth Artillery Band furnished music during the evening, playing at intervals patriotic melodies, from "Yankee Doodle" to "America." There was a large number of ladies present, who joined in the demonstrations of applause.

On the stage were T. J. Lasier, president of the Union Republican Club, under whose auspices the celebration was held; the venerable A. M. Clapp, chairman of the the venerable A. M. Clapp, chairman of the committee of arrangements, who was called on to preside; Rev. George H. Corey, D.D., Dr. Fardon, Colonel Cook, Mr. Boutelle of Maine, Senator Sawyer, Senator Hawley, Representatives Towne of Minnesota, Brumm of Pennsylvania, Cousins and Dolliver of Iowa, Lewis Clephane, Captain Crawshaw, Colonel Bramhall, Colonel John A. Lovee and others.

Crawshaw, Colonel Bramhall, Colonel John A. Joyce and others.

The exercises opened with the invocation of the divine blessing by Dr. Corey, after which Colonel William A. Cook on behalf of the committee on resolutions presented a memorial, the reading of which drew forth repeated outbursts of applause and were adopted with a shout. The document set forth the facts of interest concerning. set forth the facts of interest concerning the birth of the party and recapitulated the achievements and its promises for the Union Republican Club, assuming charge of the meeting as chairman, made a brief address, telling of the formation of the club, which now numbers 750 members, and then paid a high tribute to A. M. Clapp and his long party service. He then asked him to take charge as president of the meeting. In taking the chair, as soon as the applause which greeted Mr. Lasier's invitation had died away, Mr. Clapp said: "We have met tonight to commemorate the life, the birth, and, we hope, the cternal preservation in the hearts of the American recents." people, of the father of our country and the national republican party of the United States. That party, which has been pro-reunced dead, is now asserting itself, and the popular voice of the people of the United States—which is the voice of God— has left our curponents in a state of the United States—which is the voice of God-has left our opponents in a state of dis-traction." After a short speech retrospec-tive of important events in the history of the republican party, Mr. Clapp called out Scrator Hawley, who made a most inter-esting speech, narrating the experiences of early republicans, describing how the party began and the events of the Fremont cam-paign. Beaching contemporary custing paign. Reaching contemporary questions, the speaker reviewed the foreign policy of the present administration. Of the tariff he said that if the Wilson bill had been passed as originally drawn it would have swept ever the land like a biting blizzard. The Senate, he said, had more sense than the President and his cabinet, and modified the bill. Speaking of the bonds, Senator Hawley declared that Cleveland had run the country in debt to the amount of $550,000,000.

Representative Brumm of Pennsylvania next spoke. The republican party, he insisted, was the party of progress, of equality, for north, south, east and west. It was a party born on moral, patriotic and humanitarian ideas. He was frequently applauded. Representative Cousins of Iowa spoke of what the republican party had done for the workingman and the prosperity of the country, and scathingly described the effect of try, and scathingly described the enerty, and scathingly described the try, and try, a progress than any other moral movement in all history.

At this point Col. John A. Joyce was called forth, and read a poem written for the occasion. Representative Dolliver of Iowa was called on and made a speech, predicting party success and pointing out what he claimed to be the weaknesses of democratic policy.

Mr. Boutelle's Address.

After him came Representative Boutelle of Maine, who was the last speaker of the evening. He made an earnest plea for republicanism on broad, moral grounds, as the doctrine which, he claimed, would protect every man in his rights at home and abroad. "I will not be satisfied," he said, "until the republican party has so far fulfilled that portion of its mission that we shall no longer have thirty cases of contested election cases before us, every one of which represents open and bold defiance of the laws and the Constitution of the United States. I want her first of all to bring back the industries of which we have been robbed and the prosperity of which we have been deprived by the democratic party. I am not ready to fling up my cap in honor of Grover Cleveland as a leader in the affairs of mandial while the most important demand is kind while the most important demand is the restoration of the prosperity and the in-dustries of which we have been robbed. want to see a senate which, instead of passing buncombe resolutions and resolutions insulting to other countries, will enable us to secure an adequate revenue."

Letters of regret were read from Senator Cullom and Senator Perkins. During the evening a telegram was received from Gov. Morton of New York, expressing his regret at being unable to attend the meeting. Let-ters of regret were received from Messrs. Harrison, Allison, Reed and McKinley. The meeting closed with three-cheers for the next republican nominee. Joshua Parker Wanted.

Judge Kimball is making anxious inquiries for the whereabouts of an armiess man ramed Joshua Parker, for whose relief a bill has been introduced in Congress. One day last summer the judge was passing the corner of 9th and F streets when his attention was attracted to a man and woman who had a small hand organ. The weman was turning the crank of the instrument, which was making music calculated to arouse the charity of those who heard it.

On a placard giving a history of the man's life, the judge noticed that he was from Fort Wayne, Ind. The judge was interested in the man and woman, as they were from his old home. He learned that the man, Joshua Parker, had served throughout the war in the twelfth and rightenth. Indiana regiments, and had eighteenth Indiana regiments, and had made for himself an excellent record.

He was disabled in the service, but he made no application for

Mrs. Parker told the judge that it was very humillating to her to have to sit about on street corners and earn a living in this way, but she could do nothing else.

She would willingly go out and work for him, but because of his helplessness, she has to be with him all the time. The judge had known the Parker family at Fort Wayne, and so he concluded to get congressional relief for the totally disabled man. To this end a bill has been intro-duced providing a pension of $50 a month, and Dr. Gallinger, chairman of the Senate committee, has hopes of securing favorable action on the bill.

and the Commissioners

Society celebrated its sixty-fourth anniversary at the Metropolitan M. E. Church last night. A large audience, embracing many distinguished people interested in the cause of temperance, was present. Dr. Hugh Johnson opened the exercises with religious services and a brief address. He said the whole question of temperance in this country would soon be settled if every member of Congress were to join the society. Congressman Dingley, president of the society, made a short speech on the purpose of the organization, and introduced Rev. F. D. Power, the secretary, who read his annual report, which reviewed the progress of temperance in Congress and at the Capitol, and dwelt on the widening interest and effort in behalf of abstinent habits and clean speech and thought. Among the societies mentioned were the Sons of Temperance, rumbering 62,528; Good Templars, 53,653; Templars of Honor and Temperance, 40,-000; Catholic Total Abstinence Union, 65,-994; the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, 187,173; the Christian Endeavor, the Union, 187,173; the Christian Endeavor, the Epworth League and kindred societies of over 4,000,000. Mention was also made of the work of the Anti-Saloon League. In regard to control of the sale of liquor in Washington Mr. Power said: "No more liquor will be sold in the Division. Bawdy bouses and lowest dives under the very eaves of the Executive Manslon, selling the vilest liquor to the mest depressed. the vilest liquor to the most depraved classes of humanity, scores of dens within shot of the President's ducking gun, where night is made hideous with the orgies of the damned, have been a stench in the nostrils of the people long enough; and high-toned clubs, whose work, however elegant, is no more wholesome, are to be restricted." The report closed by quoting the President's last Thanksgiving proclamation, which Mr. Power commended for its encouraging atternance in the line of its encouraging utterance in the line of temperance reform.

Congressman Dingley of Maine and Johnson of North Dakota made brief addresses, the former urging a campaign of education, the latter telling of the effect of prohibition aws in his state. Bishop Newman, who was in the audience, was called on for a speech, and made ore. He said he was a republican, and he expected ere long the party would be sing-ing the psalm, "The Lord Reigneth and Reigneth Forever More." He wanted the republican party to put in its platform the plank: "We, the republican party of the United States of America, are prepared to stand by prohibition whenever the American people shall demand the same."

Ex-Congressman Pelham of Maine spoke on the liquor law of Maine and how it had on the liquor law of Maine and how it had worked, and ex-Congressman Taylor of Ohio gave his ideas on a practical liquor law. He wanted liquor manufacturers and dealers made responsible for the evils they cause, just as corporations and contractors are for accidents or deaths by criminal negligence. He suggested the appointment of a commission of three good men to de-termine the expense the city of Washing-tcn was put to by the saloons, with the view of making the saloons pay their share. "But," he said; "we want to get three good Commissioners. I wouldn't take the three we have now; I would have re-spectable men." spectable men."

President Dingley closed the meeting with a few remarks on the practical operation of the prohibition law in Maine. He said the revenue license issued by the United States authorities was regarded as prima facie evidence of the sale of liquor, and by means of it the local authorities knew where to look for violations of the state law.

With prayer by Rev. Dr. Brown and the singing of the doxology, the meeting was Changed Tactics.
